DELUXE TOURS

Essence of Spring

Explore Japan at its best season of the year. Visit cities where you will find the spectacular views covered by Japan's symbol flower, cherry blossoms. Combine fascinating sightseeing in each city you visit between Tokyo and Kyoto or beyond with a glorious backdrop of pink colors. You will be truly impressed by its nature, historical, and cultural sites. It is truly a blessing to experience Japanese culture during spring time.

Experience for yourself the breathtaking beauty of sakura across famous landmarks of Japan.

Kanpai! It is the season of sakura, or cherry blossoms, and millions of people are off to a flower viewing party beneath the trees. Most say that Japan is best to visit during spring when all the usual parks and temples look even more beautiful with the flutter of sakura petals in the background.

No other flower can gather a community and create an atmosphere so nostalgic like the sakura tree. The concept of sakura is about appreciating the present. In Buddhism, the lifespan of the sakura is short like the nature of life. Samurai admired it since their life could be cut short at any moment like the sakura. It is depicted in every object in Japanese life from their kimono to their arts for its innate beauty. It is now an iconic symbol of Japan.

Japan Cherry Blossom Tours will take you to all the usual highlight routes but with photogenic views of sakura. Come and marvel sceneries like Mt. Fuji, Kiyomizu Temple, and Todaiji Temple but with an essence of spring.

“Thank you again for making our dream vacation the absolute trip of a lifetime”
– Kimberlee

“We would like to thank you for a fantastic tour. It was everything you promised, and more”
– Dick and Judy

“It was worth every penny...I thought I knew what being a service to others meant until I experienced the high degree of service in Japan...”
– Alexander

Essence of Spring with Hiroshima 8 nights 9 days

Action packed tour touches the essential parts of Japan and sails to the small island of Miyajima

Sakura, or cherry blossoms, marks that spring has arrived, melting the snowy barren terrain and bringing new life. Feel the fresh air of flowers blooming in favorite spots like Tokyo, Hakone, Mt. Fuji, Nara, Kyoto, Osaka, Hiroshima, Miyajima, and more. Come celebrate the beginning of spring in Japan -the “Sakura” is never far away.

We will take you to UNESCO World Heritage Sites such as Todaiji Temple where “Great Buddha” and roaming deer reside in Nara, and the floating torii of Miyajima in Hiroshima. You will participate in a tea ceremony in a Buddhist Temple, make your original cup noodle and take a cruise around Lake Ashi with an awe-inspiring view of Mt. Fuji.

This fully guided tour takes you to Hiroshima Peace Park where the sakura breathe new life to the skeletal remains of the A-Bomb Dome marking peace over the horrors of war. You can also extend your vacation before/after the tour in Tokyo, Osaka, Kyoto, and Hiroshima.

TAKACHIHO

Takachiho

Legend states when Susanoo, God of Storm, terrorized Amaterasu, his sister and Sun Goddess, she hid in a cave plunging the world into darkness. The cave is called Ama-no-Iwato, the heavenly rock cave, and it exists in a small town in Kyushu called Takachiho. It is located deep in the forest of Miyazaki away from the bright lights of the city and pollution. Take the steps to uncover the mysteries of Shinto's beloved goddess by visiting Takachiho Shrine and watch the kagura dance performance where they re-enact the legend of Amaterasu and her escape to the cave. The dramatic finale to the story ends with a dance where the cave opens, bringing sun and life to the world. Next to the shrine, take a boat ride to Takachiho gorge where you will witness gorgeous waterfalls and daunting rock formations.

Essence of Spring Takayama Festival

7 nights 8 days

祭
MATSURI

Immerse yourself into one of the most beautiful and vibrant festivals in the mountain village of Takayama.

Isolated deep in the western mountain, there is a “little Kyoto” where the festival lights illuminate the night and music fills the air. Takayama festival is considered to be one of the three most beautiful festivals in Japan. Their huge floats are paraded all day and night with mechanical puppet shows, brilliant color paper machete, and lanterns.

This tour package will take you there in time to see the festival and also a side trip to the majestic UNESCO Heritage Site of Shirakawago. Gifu prefectures get huge amounts of snow and the locals built gassho-zukuri farmhouses to combat it. Some homes are as old as 250 years and able to fit 10 families in one unit. This trip allows you to become part of this unique Japanese culture as it comes to life.

Mikoshi! Palanquins

An important element of Japanese festivals is processions, in which the local shrines' kami (Shinto deity) is carried through the town in mikoshi. It is the only time of the year when the kami leaves the shrine.

Tour Highlights

Soba

Soba noodles are native Japanese noodles made of buckwheat flour (soba-ko) and wheat flour (komugi-ko). They are roughly as thick as spaghetti, and prepared in various hot and cold dishes. The most basic soba dish is zaru soba in which boiled, cold soba noodles are eaten with a soy based dipping sauce (tsuyu).

The Thousand Paper Cranes

*"This is our cry. This is our prayer.
For building peace in the world."*

Sadako's memorial

Through sad circumstances and inspiring life story, the crane origami became the international symbol of peace. It all started with a little girl name Sadako Sasaki. Ten years after the atomic bomb, she died as the result of leukemia caused by the radiation of the atomic bomb blast in Hiroshima. There is a legend in Japan, where a wish can be given if they can fold one thousand paper cranes. Her courage and determination led her to make one thousand paper cranes in hopes that it might grant her wish to recover. Through her illness, she stayed positive which inspired her classmates and others to find world peace. Sadako's statue can be seen at Hiroshima Peace Memorial Park beautifully decorated with a golden crane on top. People around the world who also wished for peace sent thousands of paper cranes in memory of her. Sadako's story is one of many stories in the museum. This once in a lifetime visit to Hiroshima will inspire you to also take steps toward Sadako's dream of peace.

Saginoyu Ryokan(Nagano)

Onsen 温泉

If you want to know about Japan's culture, you have to get under the surface and see it bare... quite literally. Soaking in an onsen, hot spring, is the best way to get to know Japan and its people. Possibly nowhere in the world appreciates a good soak in the hot waters like Japan. Young, old, wealthy, or poor can mingle in this one location breaking social barriers and getting to know people in a relaxing setting. It is often referred to as 裸の付き合い (hadaka no tsukiai or naked communion). Often foreigners are intimidated by the fact that they have to bathe naked with others but soon realize that no one cares about your appearance or state of nakedness. They just want to appreciate the calming and power of the water. There are different types of hot springs with different herbs and minerals in the bath. Some onsen have unique features like herbal tea hot spring in Shizuoka, onsens with views of Mt. Fuji, sand and mud baths in Beppu, and an azure color of Nyuto. It is worth visiting Japan just to experience the wonderment of the onsen.

Hotel Tsubakikan
(Matsuyama)

Yukata

Dogo Onsen 道後温泉

“The dango shop where I went was near the entrance to the tenderloin, and as the dango served there was widely known for its nice taste, I dropped in on my way back from my bath. ... Since my arrival here, I had made it a part of my routine to take in the hot springs bath every day. While there was nothing in this town which compared favorably with Tokyo, the hot springs were worthy of praise. So long as I was in the town, I decided that I would have a dip every day... The bath house I patronized was a newly built three-story house, and for the patrons of the first class the house provided a bath-robe, in addition to an attendant, and the cost was only eight sen. On top of that, a maid would serve tea in a regular polite fashion.... The bath-tub, --- or the tank in this case, --- was built of granite, and measured about thirty square feet. Usually there were thirteen or fourteen people in the tank, but sometimes there was none. As the water came up clear to the breast, I enjoyed, for athletic purposes, swimming in the tank. I delighted in swimming in this 30-square feet tank, taking chances of the total absence of other people.”

- Natsume Soseki, Botchan

A hidden gem in the outskirts of Japan, Dogo Onsen is one of the oldest hot springs which is said to be 3,000 years old. It is also the inspiration for the story of “Sen to Chihiro” (“Spirited Away”) with their unique appearance, complex building structure, and customers being gods. Japanese folklore tells stories of the healing qualities of the hot spring. The legend states that during their journey to Matsue, Sukunahikona no Mikoto, a thumb-size god, became ill. Okuni-nushi no Mikoto, patron god of Japan, was worried and took him to a hot spring. Soon he recovered and danced on a nearby rock. The second legend tells of a white heron, egret, which had a wounded leg and was healed with the properties of the hot springs. The building has imprints of these legends: Sukunahikona’s tiny foot-print can be seen at the north entrance and heron images are etched on the ruff and other locations. The oldest record about the onsen dates back to 574-622 AD when Prince Shotoku used to partake in the waters. Actually a few Emperors, Empress, and royal family have visited and have their own exclusive facility reserved for when they visit. Come and see all these legends and stories come to life in Dogo Onsen. Have a nice bath, eat some Botchan dango, and listen to nice drum tunes on top of the building that only rings three times a day (6:00am/ 12:00pm/ 6:00pm).

KYOTO

Kyoto

Japan's former capital is filled with tradition and culture around every corner. Home to geisha, temples, shrines, and other historic structures, a trip to Kyoto is essential for the full Japanese experience. As you walk through Kyoto's many traditional streets and paths, feel yourself immersed in Japanese culture. Kyoto is home to seventeen World Cultural Heritage Sites including Kiyomizu Temple and Nijo Castle. Kyoto is also home to the Golden Pavilion, a magnificent temple covered in gold leaf, a must see in Kyoto. If you were hoping to see a traditional Geisha in Japan, Kyoto is the best place to go. Visit the Gion corner, where you might just see a Geisha and her apprentice on their way to an important dinner. Before you leave Kyoto, a walk through the thousand red torii gates of Fushimi Inari Shrine should be on your itinerary. The oldest and most famous shrine in all of Japan, follow thousands of torii gates that form an unbroken tunnel of red leading to the crest of Mount Inari.

Nara

Nara may not be the largest town, but with its parks, temples, and 1200 sacred deer, Nara is sure to be one of the friendliest in Japan. Despite a turbulent history, Nara is the home of Buddhism in Japan. Home to Horyu-ji Temple, known as the oldest existing Buddhist temple in Japan, and the Nara National Museum, devoted to Buddhist arts, Nara is a must see for those interested in Buddhist history. The centerpiece of this magnificent city is the Great Buddha, one of the world's largest bronze statues. Standing at a towering 16.2 meters, this National Treasure in Todaiji Temple is a marvel for everyone to enjoy. Tourists are advised to visit Nara throughout the year to enjoy the natural scenery. During the spring, Mt. Yoshino is a perfect spot for Hanami. The view is so popular, it's considered one of the best cherry blossom viewing points in Japan. Before heading to your next city, stop by Nara Park to play with the friendly deer. Treasured by the locals, the deer were once thought to be messengers from the gods. Not only are these deer friendly, but you can even feed them deer crackers sold by local vendors around the park. Some deer even bow to visitors when being fed!

The Culinary Delights

With everything from sushi to sake and ramen to green tea, Japan offers a wide selection of culinary delights. Japanese cuisine features delicate and precise techniques to create delicious works of art. As one of the top food cities in the world, Tokyo has attracted more and more culinary attention worldwide. With such increasing popularity, you are sure to have tried some variation of Japanese food, but tasting the food in its country of origin is an eye-opening experience. Each part of Japan is sure to surprise you with its delectable local cuisine using the freshest ingredients from land and sea.

Sushi & Sashimi

Sushi is considered an accompaniment for beer and sake. All proper sushi restaurants serve their fish over rice, in which case it's called sushi, or without rice, in which case it's called sashimi or tsukuri. There are two main types of sushi: nigiri-zushi (served on a small bed of rice - the most common variety) and maki-zushi (served in a seaweed roll).

Yakitori

Yakitori are barbecued chicken meat, giblets, and leek on a skewer, seasoned with tare(sauce) or salt. It is a popular after-work meal and a great appetizer.

Tempura

Tempura is a traditional Japanese dish consisting of fried vegetables, fish or shellfish dipped in dough and batter-fried in high-temperature oil.

Wagashi

Wagashi is a traditional Japanese confectionery which is often served with tea, especially the types made of mochi, azuki bean paste, and fruits.

Wagashi is typically made from plant ingredients.

Izakaya

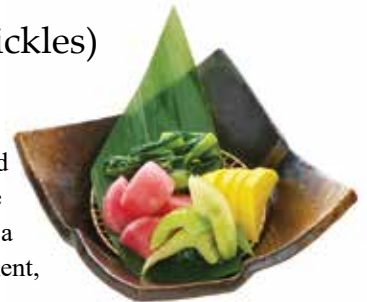

An Izakaya is the Japanese equivalent of a pub. It's a good place to visit when you want a great meal, a wide selection of food, a hearty atmosphere and, of course, plenty of beer and sake.

When you enter an izakaya, you are given the choice of sitting at the counter, at a table or on a tatami floor.

Tsukemono (Pickles)

Tsukemono are Japanese preserved vegetables such as radishes, Chinese Cabbage and cucumbers pickled in salt, rice bran, or miso. By pickling for a long time, the vegetables ferment, adding a special flavor.
